BYU SECURITY "rough riders" met their match Monday as they tackled two Shetland ponies in the baseball north of Helaman Halls. Although the incident drew four Security police, no arrests were made. The two ponies warned that the next incident of loitering would not be tolerated.

Graduate President To Speak At Youth At Thursday Forum

John P. Leary, an alumnus college president who owns the post of academic president of the largest Jesuit university in the United States, will speak Thursday at the forum assembly.

Dynamic speaker, Father Leary will speak about why youth are alienated as a result of the loss of their gods. He spoke at a youth group last semester and the teachers were so impressed that he was invited to speak at the entire school.

Father Leary received his doctorate in philosophy from the University of Rome in 1965.

Years later, he was named president of Gonzaga University after having been its vice-president, dean of the graduate school and of the school of education.

He was probably one of the few college presidents who continued to teach as an administrator.

Telefund Termed Successful

The most successful telefund ever held in this area" the telefund raised nearly $40,000, it was announced Monday.

The 400 volunteer fund-raising team, many of them students, alumni, parents and friends, worked to raise the money and researched thousands of names to be called. Five telephones were set up in the Alumni House to make the calls. Most of the volunteers were calling dozens of homes.

Telefund has become one of the most successful fund-raising efforts in the area. Forty-four areas of the United States have a BYU telefund this year and over 2,000 volunteer fund workers have assisted BYU in this activity.

Drill Teams Go To Disneyland

BYU's Army and Air Force ROTC drill teams and the Angel Flight drill team will participate in a national meet this weekend in Disneyland, according to Maj. James H. Cowles, Army drill team adviser.

The meet, sponsored by the UCLA chapter of the Arnold Air Society, will be held at Disneyland Saturday morning.

My Lai Incident

Panel Charges West Point Leader

WASHINGTON (AP) Fourteen Army officers including the superintendent at West Point were charged Tuesday with military violations ranging from dereliction of duty to false swearing in connection with the alleged massacre at Son My, South Vietnam.

The charges were the outgrowth of a 14-week Pentagon probe of whether the Army adequately investigated or tried to cover up the alleged mass killing of South Vietnamese civilians by Americans in March 1968.

Declining to call it a coverup as such, Lt. Gen. William R. Peers, head of a special panel looking into the case, reported there were "serious deficiencies" in the performance of a number of officers who held command and staff positions in the units involved in U.S. operations around Son My and its hamlet of My Lai.

High Ranking Officers Implicating perhaps the highest ranking officers ever involved in a single case, the Army levied charges against two generals, five colonels, three majors and four captains.

Among them were Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Koster, present West Point head who was commander of the American Division whose units swept through Son My two years ago Monday. He was charged with failure to obey lawful regulations and dereliction in the performance of his duties.

Charged with the same violations was his assistant at the time, Brig. Gen. George H. Young, Jr.

Failure to Report Capt. Ernest L. Medina, who led Company C 1st Battalion, 20th Infantry, during the controversial raid on My Lai, was charged with misprision of a felony, or failure to report the commission of a felony.

Peers said the inquiry, which heard 400 witnesses and recorded some 20,000 pages of testimony in a Pentagon basement, "clearly established that a tragedy of major proportions" occurred at Son My.

Peers said that releasing details from the report, which has been turned over to Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor and Gen. William C. Westmoreland, might prejudice court-martials already scheduled or which may be scheduled in the future.

Medina, for example, had been charged previously with murdering two civilians at My Lai.

One of his platoon leaders, Lt. William L. Calley Jr., faces a court-martial charging that he murdered 102 My Lai villagers.

Koster Tells Cadets Koster told a hushed audience of 3,700 cadets at West Point one hour before the Peers report was released in Washington that he was requesting reassignment because of charges brought against him.

"I want you to be among the first to know that I will soon leave West Point," the general said in a mess hall talk.

"I have been informed by my superiors that action has been initiated against me in connection with my performance of duty in the spring of 1968 while serving as commanding general of the American Division in Vietnam," Koster said.

He said he wanted to leave West Point "in order to separate the military academy and you of the corps from the continuing flow of public announcements" about the alleged massacre.

After his brief remarks, the cadets gave Koster a standing ovation.

Musical Events Mark Festival's First Week

The first week of the Festival of Mormon Arts which starts today will be a concentrated program of musical events featuring Mormon musicians from around the country.

A performance of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir will begin the festival tonight at 8:15 in the Smith Fieldhouse. Thursday's program begins with a demonstration on "Music in the Home" 10 a.m. to noon in the Recital Hall, Harris Fine Arts Center.

Violist David Dalton will give a solo recital in the Madisen Recital Hall 8:15 p.m. Dalton is studying for his doctorate from Indiana University. He is a faculty member at BYU.

That same day the Oratorio Choir and Symphony Orchestra will premier a new work by Mormon composer LaMar Barras, Ode to Libertad, as well as other works by Mormon composers. This concert will be in the De Jong Concert Hall at 8:15 p.m.

Friday will feature a workshop on "Music in the LDS Worship Service" at 10 a.m. in the Recital Hall.

Another chamber music concert with works by LDS Composers will be performed by the BYU Faculty Woodwind Quintet and String Quartet at 2 p.m. in the Recital Hall.

A young piano virtuoso, Michael Cannon, will give a recital in the Recital Hall at 4 p.m. Cannon has just returned from a European tour.

The A Cappella Choir adds its musical ability to the program with a concert of Mormon choral music at 8:15 p.m. in the Concert Hall.

BYU's Weather

The snow is over for a while, according to the weather forecast at the Salt Lake City airport. Today will be partly cloudy, however, with a high near 40 and low temperatures still in the low twenties. Thursday should be mostly fair.

Where Have All The LDS Authors Gone?

The second annual Festival of Mormon Arts gets underway today with the glorious sound of the Mormon Tabernacle Choir. It will come to a close six weeks hence with a presentation by BYU's A Cappella Choir.

Between today and April 18 there will be music, music all the way.

As students we can be grateful for the opportunity to see and hear first-class artists, and to see and hear first-class works by composers and playwrights.

A great deal of effort has gone into the planning of this festival and those who have fought the good fight to arrange schedules and deal with possible artistic idiosyncrasies are deserving of congratulations.

Not only will the talents of great artists be on display, but also the talents of the BYU Music and Drama Departments.

In point of fact, music will be very much to the fore. Of all the events being held during the festival, the majority will be of the musical variety.

Under the musical heading there will be full-blown concerts by such groups as the Tabernacle Choir, the BYU Philharmonic Orchestra, the Utah Symphony Orchestra, and the BYU Oratorio Choir and Symphony Orchestra. There will also be William's opera "Pilgrim's Progress," and the Spring Ballet Concert. The latter is also an opening day feature of the festival.

In all there are some 20 musical events, not counting the ballet and the opera. The events will include recitals with such soloists as violinist David Dalton, pianist Michael Cannon, tenor Ray Lawrence Arbizu, and pianist Nelson Penariz.

As can be deduced from the above glimpse of the program, the Festival of Mormon Arts is short on non-musical events. This is not meant as a criticism of the festival planners but as an observation that when it comes to Mormon Arts we appear to be lacking in written works such as plays, poetry and books.

Of course, we do have an impressive library when it comes to books on Church history or Church doctrine or Church leaders, but where are the Steinbecks, Faulkners and Hemingways of Mormon literature? Where are the Mormon playwrights?

Perhaps they are right here on this campus. Perhaps some BYU students of today will become the author of the "Great American novel."

Mormons have an increasing role in public life. Let us hope that we will have a growing role in the world of literature.

Meanwhile, enjoy the festival!

Campus Comments

Students Want Both Sides

Question of the Week: Would you agree with Ken Karchner's statement that THE DAILY UNIVERSE should be more controversial?

Lee Blumfeld, 21, Magrath, Alta., Canada.

"I don't think so. It's a matter of how far you should push things. Certainly, the UNIVERSE should not be against the standards of the University. But I'm sure that a lot of improvements could be made.

Nev. Barbara Bishop, Overton, Nev.

"It's good that we are presented with both sides, instead of looking at only one side. But the paper shouldn't be opposed to the university standards."

Bob Smithson, 23, Nauvoo, Ill. "Sometimes, the UNIVERSE is a little one-sided. It's especially biased towards the Mormon religion. Too much controversy is bad, but some is good because it brings in outside opinion. So outside statements could be helpful in creating controversy, but they should be tactful. It would make people think for a change instead of just living."

Stew Glancy, 25, Ky. "There's a virtue in showing the better side of both sides of the picture, but it would cause a lot of unrest. Both sides should be presented, within limits. But with something really controversial, I wonder if it would really be worthwhile. Certainly it wouldn't be if the paper brought differences in the administration. That just hurts feelings, and causes fault-finding."

Jess Lyons, Moses Lake, Wash., 24.

"Controversy should be brought up, but not like the article on prayer and rock dances. I didn't like the article, it gave me a whole negative feeling about prayer and religion. The UNIVERSE shouldn't try to undermine the principles that the school is founded on. It should give the plain facts, and then let the students make up their mind. Most papers today give too much of a slanted point of view."

knowing it, they perhaps try to obtain a loan from The Church like the catalogue mentions. Then, upon submitting their application to the Smoot Building, they quickly learn that although the catalogue says that lenders and lenders can borrow up to $300 per year, if they already have a government loan they can't borrow a cent. This forces them to either accept a school job at the great wage of $1.50 an hour (they are lucky enough to find one) or quit school (thanks to the incomplete and misleading catalogue).

Thus, if they have passed their examinations, they are surprised to learn that the administration passes new rules and regulations governing money and minors the departments also get into the act without any subsequent catalogue informing students. Thus, the student is left without any guide to plan by and is subject to the frequent changes of the administration without any change in written policy. This is a gross usurpation of power by the administration that definitely should be changed. Is once a year too long to wait to change policies? Couldn't the catalogue be followed for at least a year and if policies need changing couldn't they wait for the new catalogue so that at least students would know what the score is before borrowing money and committing themselves? If our government worked this way (that is to change laws by enforcement without changing them on the books for all to see) we would be greatly offended and would demand that these laws be written down would we not? Then, we would permit this type of school government? Isn't it time that we as students know what we have to do in order to secure a degree before borrowing money and planning our time?

I submit that we here at BYU have a yearly catalogue and that new policies only be issued once a year, printed in the catalogue along with rules for all to see before unwritten rules and regulations make most papers out of all of us.

Editor: This morning (March 16, Monday) because some student's Vols parked in what was clearly marked yellow curbing as a no-parking should, of course, have been and, in fact, it was. Such ticketed quite often, of a mention this incident only 0.001 of an hour after the morning the same no-parking occupied by one or two faculty always unattended by Security.

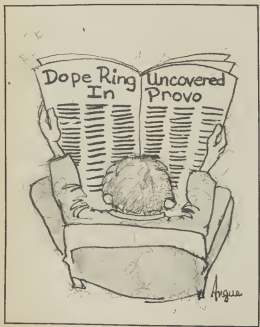

Not wanting to be told by faithful students to simply a University, I won't ask why such selective enforcement of at best a trivial regulation, I want to know the involved members that the power of control, and that through their they have managed to add $1.00 dollars to the University coffers to mention all they've added, respect we students have for John D. runs," was the comment made by baseball coach Glen Tuckett about the 2-4 roadtrip to California.

"We hit the ball hard and often but it was usually at somebody," said Tuckett. "Dane long hit the ball well but came up with only a few hits because they were hit at somebody."

Tuckett also had praise for his pitching staff and thought they performed well for this early in the season. Jim Faux and Jeff Dusek received special praise for their efforts. When asked if Brad Meyring and Steve Easton would still be his number one and number two starters Tuckett replied, "I don't know, we'll have to wait and see."

As to the U of San Francisco games Tuckett said, "Yes, they had good pitching but we should have hit more." But as to the Cal-Berkeley game he said, "Their first pitcher was nothing great but we couldn't hit him. In the second game their pitcher threw slower than your grandmother, but he held us down."

All in all, the coach was pleased with the hitting of his team. Iorg, Howard, Gerald Cardon and the others hit well but just couldn't put them all together to score the runs.

The statistics on the games bears out Tuckett's feelings as to their hitting. Leading this year's squad after six games is number one catcher Terry "Whitey" Sanford with a .444 average. Following close behind are several players, third baseman Gerald Cardon and catcher Dick Belliston both have .363 averages and shortstop Mike Saffner has .353. Doug Howard and reserve outfielder Jim Talbot are both hitting at a .333 clip. Outfielder Butch Fairbanks is also above the .300 mark at .303.

Not only have the Cougars been hitting the ball often but they've been hitting it hard. In the opening four games, two against St. Mary's and two against USC, the Cal Batters have rapped out 16 extra base hits, including two home runs, seven triples and seven doubles. In the final two contests against Cal at Berkeley, the Cougars have held without an extra base hit in both games.

Anaheim Tourney

The Cougars will leave on Friday for another California excursion during which they will participate in the Anaheim Tourney. On Saturday the Cougars will meet USC in L.A. for a doubleheader as a warmup for the tourney.

Lundmark Named Athlete Of The Week

By BOB HUDSON
Asst. Sports Editor

As athlete of the week, Lundmark will receive a free haircut from the Wilkinson Center Barber Shop and a free pizza from Rich's Pizza House.

Ken Lundmark, one of BYU's two "jumping Swedes," would, at first glance, appear to be a basketball player as he stands 6'7" tall and weighs over 200 lbs. Unfortunately, especially for his opponents, he isn't too familiar with the hoop sport.

Lundmark, a freshman physical education major from Skelleftea, Sweden, is the current Swedish national indoor record-holder in the high jump. He set that mark earlier this season in the Maple Leaf Games in Toronto, Canada when he leaped 7'10".

Last week Ken earned All-American honors as he won the NCAA indoor championship in the high jump. He was the only jumper in a large field to clear seven foot barriers.

Right now Lundmark has to goals for this season. He would like to clear 7'3" and win NCAA outdoor title before returning to Sweden this summer.

The Cougars can tell the other Swede, Chris Celis for Lundmark's presence here.

Lundmark commented, who asked why he came to BYU, came here because of Chris and, of course, for the competition here.

Lundmark is favored by "Track and Field News" to win the NCAA title and thus meet its goal. The publication picks Celis for fourth place in the high jump while favoring BYU to take second in the championship mar-

Frosh Baseballers Open Here Friday With Viking Series

By RIC PACKARD
University Sports Writer

Strong pitching and good hitting will be the foundation of the BYU freshman baseball squad as they open the 1970 season in doubleheaders this Friday and Saturday against Ricks College.

Coaches Bob Conlee and Dean Thormack feel that the outlook is bright for a good season, and have hopes of bettering last year's outstanding 14 win and two loss record. The starting lineups for this weekend's games will be chosen from the large turnout of 30 high-caliber athletes.

Coach Conlee feels that the pitching staff is the Kitten's strongest attribute. Leading the hurlers will be sophomore Jim Reynolds, who has a lot of freshman pitching experience from last year. The mound was also covered by two outstanding all-stars from Utah. Kent Peterson had a 7-1 win-loss record for Oregon High School in spring, and Dave Nelson, from Bountiful, boasts a 13-1 record from his high school days. Having the job of receiving those big throw balls is Mike Dudley, catcher from Salt Lake City who has a .350 high school batting average.

The infield duties will be handled by several former all-star athletes. First base will be covered by Gary Hatch, a sophomore from Bellingham, Wash. Second and third will be watched by Utah all-stars Mark Schofield, who carried a .420 batting average, Heber, and Brad Brown, a .449 slugger from Granger, Ste. Wilson, from Pomona, Calif., who hold down the shortstop position. Wilson was one of the all-southern C team last year with a .447 hitting average.

The outfield will be the scene of a lot of fierce competition this season. Sophomores Ron Cla and Larry Fox, outstanding sluggers from Vallejo and Granada Hills, Calif., will be probable starters. Also fighting for starting berth will be Mark Brown, a .430, all-state batman from Grand Junction, Colo., Dean Gibson, an all-league player from Livermore, Calif., and Craig Hall, an all-state fielder from Newport Wash.

This season's schedule will be the Kittens meet the University Utah frosh in eight contests.

How Outlines Subtle Hints of Adversary

Satan I would try the marriage, destroy it, emphasize the power of prophecy, deny the Holy Ghost and in the Millennium.

H. Ludlow stated defining "our divine Devotional assembly" Ludlow is dean of the College of Religious Studies at BYU.

Ludlow said that part of "our destiny" is to come to "a physical body, to a creation, and to use it righteously."

Ludlow would try to "advance the cause of the power of even if he had to go to legalize abortion pill for birth control."

Ludlow said that part of our "destiny on earth is to be of freedom of choice."

Ludlow said "I would free agency away to Satan and guaranteed that I would try to destroy the system, bring the system to ill-repute and to ruin."

Ludlow said the goal is to learn to "use of free agency," Satan emphasizes the "use of free agency" and to be merry and to have a living.

Ludlow said Satan would try to "use of knowledge of God" and to "belittling works of God."

prophets. He would influence scholars to criticize the Bible on the basis that no one can know of what is to come.

Quoting a Gallup poll, Dr. Ludlow stated that only 35 per cent of people in the U.S. over 21 years of age could name all of the first four books of the New Testament. Four per cent could name three of them, four per cent could name two of them and four per cent could name one of the books. Fifty-three per cent of U.S. citizens over 21 can not name one of the four books.

He felt Satan tries "to emphasize knowledge and reasoning" rather than learning to walk by faith in this life. This explained that the demonstrations against BYU are not over BYU's racial policy but against the Church, against the principle of freedom of religion and the constitutionality of the United States.

A reason for this life is to prepare ourselves and our families to be exalted. Dr. Ludlow remarked. If he were Satan, he would deny the power of the Holy Ghost and say there were no saving ordinances such as baptism. Satan would tell people that baptism is not necessary but if you wish baptism, priesthood authority isn't essential.

To prevent people from believing in the Millennium and preparing for the reign of Jesus Christ, Ludlow believes Satan would try to prevent the growth of the two great capitals to come in this period.

These capitals will be in Israel and Missouri and explains the many attempts to exterminate the Jews or keep them out of Israel and the driving of the Latter-day Saints from Missouri.

Dr. Ludlow said most religions such as Roman Catholic, Episcopalian and Lutheran do not believe in a millennial period.

The purpose of BYU is "to prepare a leadership to go out and lead the Church." Religion classes and Devotional assemblies teach a preparation for eternity, adding to the preparation for making a living provided at other universities.

THESE SIX BELLE OF THE Y finalists will participate in today's Dating Game in the Varsity Theater at noon. The program is free for all students.

From Utah's History

Pioneers Created Own Alphabet

By JOHN LAMPHIER

Campus News Editor

This is the first in a series about early Utah and Mormon history.

The world's language barrier has long been a problem to international communications. Today, the linguists talk about phonetic alphabets, a worldwide language, a code, or even a Newspeak. They look to the day when goals and problems will be discussed in a common language.

In the 1850s, the Territory of Utah faced a similar language barrier problem. The early settlers and immigrants spoke in several different languages and the problem of establishing a common medium of speech was not easily solved. To help with the problem the regents of the University of Deseret appointed Parley P. Pratt, Heber C. Kimball and George D. Watt to develop a new alphabet and orthography for Utah's people.

The man chiefly responsible for the ensuing Deseret Alphabet was George Watt, an English convert to Mormonism. In his youth he had studied phonography, a shorthand system designed by Isaac Pitman. By 1854, Watt and other members of the committee submitted a slate of 38

characters—an alphabet that had, according to a DESERET NEWS report, "a fixed and unalterable sound for each letter; word is spelt with given sounds. We may hint of the advantage of the alphabet from word eight, which in alphabet only requires letters... AT."

Acting upon a request from Gov. Brigham Young, the Territorial Legislature, $2,500 for the casting. Two years later the committee had delivered the alphabet to the Council House.

By 1859 the DESERET was publishing in its excerpts from the Bible, Book of Mormon, but little public interest. It finally dropped out of the early 1860s. Even Young's insistence on the phonetic system did not support.

Victorian Books An Asset To Y

BYU may some day become the center for the study of Victorian period books, reported David Magee at a reception for Roy Christensen last week.

The reception, in the Pioneer Room of the J. Reuben Clark Library, was to honor Christensen who recently donated a 3,000 volume collection of Victorian books to the library.

Magee, an antiquarian book dealer from San Francisco, spent some five years putting the collection together. At the reception, Magee described the books of that period and displayed some of the collection's notable rarities.

One such rarity is a strip book consisting of a single continuous picture, which when fully extended is over 60 feet long. Magee says he has never seen a larger example of this type.

Another of the collection's curiosities is a peep show book that expands accordion-fashion to give a three-dimensional picture.

The book dealer remarked that it is the minnows of the age and not the whales that are hard to collect. He says while a first edition of an author such as Charles Dickens is interesting and important, one is likely to see another, but with the more obscure writer a collector will most probably never see another like it.

Magee cites a first edition translation of Ohmar Khayyam's Rubaiyat as the collection's rarest specimen.

Magee also said the acquisition of this collection ranks BYU very high in the centers of Victorian literature and even now scholars who wish to study the field in depth will have to come to Provo.

While UCLA still holds the number one position in this area, Magee feels if BYU continues to receive good Victorian works it may well become the center for such study.

Roy Christensen, who donated the books, is an alumnus of BYU and is now president of Beverly Enterprises. The multi-million dollar firm services hospitals, convalescent and psychiatric hospitals.

Hyde Park Is Today At Noon

The Hyde Park Free Forum will resume today—at noon in the Wilkinson Center Memorial Lounge. All students, faculty, staff and administration are invited to attend.

The forum is intended to provide an opportunity for open discussion of all topics of interest to the University community. The podium is open to students and other members of the University to express their feelings and thoughts on areas of campus or national life. Speakers may in turn ask questions of other speakers and receive questions themselves from the floor.

Ken Kartchner, ASBYU president, will be on hand with some comments and will entertain any questions from the audience. Hyde Park is a program of the ASBYU Academics Office.

THE SEARCH

CAROL LYNN PEARSON

Carol Lynn Pearson's first volume, BEGINNINGS, has sold over 8,000 copies in the BYU Bookstore alone. Beyond BYU, sales have topped 35,000 copies, which undoubtedly puts her among the top-selling poets in America. Her work has been distributed throughout every state in the union and through thirteen foreign countries. If you have not yet read BEGINNINGS, jot it down on your list of important things to do. If you have, then you will be anxious to get your copy of THE SEARCH.
